(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Delavan.—Chester Phillips, secretary of the Walworth County Fair association, was found dead, sitting in his automobile in the garage in the rear of his home here, early Monday. A revolver was clutched in his hand and a shot fired through the mouth had caused instantaneous death.
An inquest was held at Elkhorn at 2 p. m. Monday.
The discovery was made about 7 o'clock by Ernest Phillips, a brother who lived with him in the large house. "Chester" Phillips, as he was known to thousands, had made it a custom to arise early each day and go to his farm at Delavan Lake, owned by A. T. Rowell. His brother heard him get up about 6 o'clock. Coming down about 7 o'clock, he noticed the car in the garage. Through

Do You Want a Pleasant Job?
Now is the time to register for a job. The Gazette has several open for you—about 200 in fact for 200 people and we will take the names of those who want the jobs at once in order that when the time comes to go to work all that will be necessary to do is to notify the job holder.
Also this job is for all people or any. You cannot be too big or too little. You may have children of your own or none at all. You may be rich—so much the better—or just comfortable and getting on satisfactorily. That makes you eligible also.
The job—to play Santa Claus to a boy or girl the day before Christmas. Last year there were 185 Santa Clauses. This year there ought to be 200. Drop a postal card to the Santa Claus agent, care of the Gazette and get a job. Do it now.
Remember you are not asked to send food or clothing for the boys or girls assigned to you but something to make each child feel that God has not deserted them and that this is a good old world after all. Toys, playthings, gifts that parents in good circumstances would present to the children. Food and clothing and kindred delights at Christmas will be cared for through other agencies. This is one peculiarly for the kids. Are you ready to be a Santa Claus or are you too busy?

Pastor G. J. Muller, after seven years with St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran church, corner South Jackson and Center streets, announced to his congregation Sunday evening that he had a call from a church in Pittsburgh, Pa., and while he did not say he would accept, he indicated that he had already practically determined to take the new place.

MORE ALIEN LIMITATIONS ARE UPHELD

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Washington.—Two more decisions upholding efforts to curtail the land rights of aliens in California and Washington were returned today by the supreme court.
In one decision the court held that, under the alien land laws of the two states, recently held valid by the highest tribunal, aliens ineligible to citizenship cannot own stock in a land owning corporation.
In the other, it was decided that aliens who cannot own or lease land likewise are barred from entering into contracts with land holders for a division of crops.

Lowering of Surtaxes Would Put Incomes to Work, Is His Theory.

Washington.—Hundred millions of dollars are being lost in taxes by the United States government through the legal evasions practiced by taxpayers with incomes ranging from $5,000 and upward.
Fully one billion dollars in productive income has disappeared in the last five years due to the fact that people with money have not felt it worth while to engage in and pay taxes on the money because half of it would have to be given up in taxes.
Indeed, the wealthy people of America have been able to keep their money out of the hands of the government by the use of tax-exempt securities, and there is no way to make that illegal except by the passage of a constitutional amendment, and that may take a generation to get the necessary three-quarters of the states of the Union.

LINCOLN ADDRESS NOT CONSIDERED GREAT IN 1863

Sixty years ago on Monday, Abraham Lincoln delivered his famous Gettysburg address.
A search through the files of the Janesville Gazette turned up what is thought of little importance by contemporaries at that time. The complete Gazette story given the day after the ceremonies, follows:
"The oration was delivered by Abraham Lincoln, president of the United States, at the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery at Gettysburg, Pa., on Thursday with imposing ceremonies. President Lincoln and several governors of the eastern states were present, besides an immense concourse of people.

Magnus Demands Square Deal, for Big Business

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Chicago.—Senator Magnus Johnson, farmer-laborer of Minnesota, after declining in two addresses here yesterday that he was going to the capital prepared to fight; that he would insist on reasonable laws affecting business and a square deal for big business, was to leave today for Washington.
"I will not stand for any laws that will be unreasonable to the business of this country," he said in addressing the Chicago Federation of Labor. "Big business will get a square deal from Magnus Johnson."
He hinted at a peace plan of his own, after declaring that civilization rests on religion and adjusting his hearers to observe the golden rule.
"I am not for the League of Nations," he said. "I am for something so that we can send men or women to Europe and tell them over there that we want peace."
He predicted that President Coolidge would be nominated by the republicans and that the democrats would nominate "another stand patter."
At the close of his second address he said he once considered Senator Hiram Johnson of California a good progressive, adding "but I don't consider him so now."

Walton Verdict Is Expected Soon

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Oklahoma City, Okla.—The impeachment trial of Governor J. C. Walton was rapidly drawing to a close today, with a verdict probably late today or tomorrow.
With the defense table deserted, as a result of the executor's unexpected withdrawal from the hearing on Saturday, prosecution counsel today wound up the loose ends of their case and introduced testimony of a few witnesses.
When the prosecution rests, a brief summary of the evidence introduced in support of the 16 charges will be presented to the court, and a vote on acquittal or conviction is expected at once.
Governor Walton suspended the right of habeas corpus during the period of martial law in Oklahoma was presented briefly by the prosecution. An executive proclamation suspending the writ was read to the court, with the announcement "that's all there is to it." A passage from the state constitution providing that "the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall never be suspended by the authorities of this state," was then quoted.
The French cabinet, called to consider the agreement in principle, issued a decree confirming the agreement, but postponing the meeting until tomorrow, as the British and Belgian ambassadors had received no word from their governments regarding the text of the proposal note to Germany.
Protection Is Demanded.
The sense of the note proposed by the council of ambassadors to be sent to Germany was said to be a demand that Germany provide protection for the inter-allied military control mission wherever the Reich has control.
STRESEMANN IN DEFENSE OF PRINCE'S RETURN
Berlin.—Chancellor Stresemann, in a speech before the Reichstag, said, with reference to the former crown prince's return: "The council of ambassadors is to be congratulated for having reached a decision which is a step forward for the return of the crown prince. I hold it, however, better to suffer new French brutalities than to bear the reproach that the world in the front was should remain exiled abroad, far from his family.
Cheers greeted the chancellor's statement.
SECURITY IS IMPERATIVE.
DECLARES POINCARÉ
London.—A French official statement given over asserted that France's leaders would neglect nothing to maintain the solid front of the allies, but that they were too conscious of their responsibilities to sacrifice the security of the country.
Premier Poincaré made this point clear in his speech at Neuilly yesterday.
"Our security is just as important to us as reparations," and when speaking of Germany's "shameless violations of the treaty," he concluded: "Penalties are imperative. We shall inflict them if we do not obtain satisfaction."

Around-the-World Cruise Is Planned by War Department Next Year.
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Washington.—Completion of plans for an around-the-world cruise by American army aviators will be the formal permission of the government to cross their territories. The project already has the approval of Secretary Weeks.
Four officers and four enlisted men have been selected to make the flight, which is expected to demonstrate the feasibility of aerial communication between continents and provide valuable technical information. Four of the aviators will be equipped with pontoons for the flight along the coast of British Columbia, Alaska, the Aleutian Islands and Japan. Landing gear will be restored for the flight across Asia Minor by way of China, French Indo-China, Siam, Burma, India, the Persian Gulf, Turkey and on to England. The aviators will be accompanied by a motorcade and will be entertained at dinner at the Grand Hotel at 6 o'clock by the officers of Aerie 724 of Janesville.
Established air lines will be followed in the United States and Japan and between India and London. And other scenes of the route will be mapped out by officers who will precede the fliers, traveling on land.

Paris.—An agreement in principle was reached by representatives of the allies, assembled in the council of ambassadors here today, and a break between France and Great Britain on the question of the attitude to be adopted towards Germany was averted, at least temporarily.
It was announced after the conference that the ambassadors had agreed in principle on a measure to be taken toward the resumption of allied military control in Germany. The agreement was subject to the approval of the French and Belgian cabinets.

STATE THIRTEENTH IN U. S. ROAD AID

More Than 11 Million Given to Wisconsin in Federal Highway Projects.
Madison.—Wisconsin total allotments from the federal government for highway construction are $11,800,000, including allotments from 1917, when federal highway aid was inaugurated to 1924, according to statistics compiled by the American Association of Highway Officials and made available today. The state ranks thirteenth among other states of the nation in federal aid allotments.
On Aug. 1, this year, Wisconsin has received in federal aid funds $6,486,002, the report shows. Additional funds of $502,632 had been earned by the state but not yet received while the agreement value of completed contracts amounted to $397,276. In addition, the state had a credited balance on Aug. 1 for new contracts of $14,332.
From 1917 to 1924, the federal government provided federal aid for highway construction for all states, $42,000,000, according to the state highway officials' compilation. Of this amount, $24,058,293 had been paid in cash to the states on Aug. 1. There remained at that time a balance of $18,041,707 available for federal aid projects in the various states.
States which lead Wisconsin in the total amount of federal aid allotted to them are: Pennsylvania, $27,214,000; New York, $23,045,000; Missouri, $15,516,000; Minnesota, $13,197,000; Michigan, $12,652,000; Kansas, $13,115,000; Illinois, $12,250,000; Ohio, $12,250,000; Georgia, $12,466,000; and California, $14,628,000.

Road Falls 80 Ft. into Deep Water

Have people between St. Lawrence and West Bend been riding for years over a thin crust that covered a lake?
That question was brought forcefully to the attention of dwellers in that territory last week and its discovery has faced engineers with a problem.
Fred Fink, nephew of T. W. Meeker, 1120 Ravina street, Janesville, discovered it. A week ago Saturday, he was working on a new road, a steam roller over the highway in course of repair. The road leads into trunk highway 35, and is in the vicinity of Holy Hill.
He went back that night to look over the work of the day and at one place a lake 100 feet long and the width of the road lay before him. The roadway had disappeared. Measurements showed the depth of the lake to be 80 feet.
Apparently, according to surmise, a thin sheet of crust had been broken, and the water had rushed in. The roller must have started the cave-in. The marvel is that the hole did not appear when the roller was upon it and both the machine and Fink were to destruction. On each side of the "lake" there are lime ridges, but the terrain near-by is swampy.
Highway engineers now have no idea when they shall do. They may be compelled to re-route the road.

Wisconsin Established Original Dairy School

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Madison—Wisconsin whose dairy progress and achievements have more than once amazed the world, now lays claim to another distinction, long forgotten in the annals of its greater dairy maneuvers.

In 1890, Wisconsin established the first dairy school in the world's history according to Nath. Webster, head of dairy marketing, Wisconsin department of markets, Madison, Wis. It was installed in the old dairy building at the state experiment farm at Madison.

This school was established by Professor W. A. Henry, dean of the Wisconsin college of agriculture. Here, it was, where the American agricultural student obtained his fundamental training in the fundamentals of dairying and cheese-making.

In cheesemaking, the school furnished up-to-date methods in the making of acid tests, starters, milk and curd tests and in the early knowledge of the use of the curd and the proper use of the hot iron test, as well as a thorough understanding of the composition of milk, now fully illustrated to dairy classes by Dr. Stephen Babcock, inventor of the Babcock milk test.

Dr. Babcock, world famous for his test, has just passed his eightieth milestone, but continues to play an active part in the education of the American dairy student.

HONEY TALKS

Bees are queer little beauties. They not only gather nectar from the flowers and convert it into the purest and sweetest of sweets, but they make the honeycomb that goes to make the honeycomb. Just as a hog or sheep eats grain and accumulates fat, so the bees, in the honey-producing season, when they wish to make honeycomb, gorge themselves with honey, and hang themselves inside the hive in a great mass until the surplus honey they have eaten is converted into wax instead of fat, and oozes out through the pores of the bees like perspiration and is gathered by their legs and fashioned into honeycomb. So you see the comb that you eat with comb honey is really pure honey and nothing else. There is nothing unhealthy or uncleanly about it, nor is it indigestible or inclined to hurt the weakest stomach.

The bees also gather substance from the buds of trees and plants called propolis, or bee glue. They never mix this with honey, but with it they fill up every crack and crevice in the hive to make it weather-proof.

In the production of comb honey, if the sections are left in the hive a little time after they are filled and capped over, the bees smear

8,504 TEACHERS PAY INTO FUND

State Annuity Board Secretary
Makes Public Financial Report.

Madison—A total of 8,504 Wisconsin senior teachers made the required five per cent deposit to the teachers' retirement fund during the year ending June 30, 1923, and paid into the state fund $712,211.98, according to a report of the condition of the retirement fund prepared by R. E. Loveland, secretary of the state annuity board, made public today.

Investments amounting to $1,562,655.00 were made during the year, chiefly in Wisconsin real estate first mortgages. Most of these mortgages were directly on farms, the funds being loaned to farmers. Other items in the investments made during the year follow: Real estate first mortgage bonds, $150,537.50; loans to Wisconsin municipalities, $10,200; Wisconsin municipal bonds, $32,000; Canadian bonds, $627,900.

Farms Loans First.
It is pointed out by Secretary Loveland that it is the standing policy of the board not to invest the retirement funds in Canadian bonds as long as farm loans are available. The Canadian investments, he said, can be disposed of on short notice and when an opportunity is presented to invest the funds in Wisconsin farm mortgages, the required amount of outside bonds are sold and the funds placed in state investments.

Teachers that deposited required amounts in the state fund during the year were distributed as follows: State university, 525; normal schools, 469; public schools, 7,500. Required deposits paid in, according to these classifications, follow: University, $60,645; normal schools, $53,937; public schools, $597,568. The remainder of the moneys received by the retirement fund during the year came from the state teachers' retirement sur-tax, which netted $727,074.73.

Refunds to 605.

Refunds from the fund were made to 635 teachers, who ceased teaching during the year. The refunds included the teachers' contribution to the fund, with interest and accumulations. A large majority of the refunds went to public school teachers.

Sixty-one teachers began drawing annuities during the year, distributed as follows: University, none; normal schools, four; public schools, 57.

The par value of all investments of the retirement fund outstanding on October 31, was $3,757,250, while the cost of these was $3,710,555.

A detailed report of the retirement fund was made before the public school retirement association at Milwaukee recently by Secretary Loveland.

That those who attend the music picture, "The Story of the Moor in Spanish," Tuesday at the high school auditorium given by Dudley Crafts Watson, director of the Milwaukee League, will have a unique and interesting performance, is the opinion of members of the Janesville Art League. The Art League is sponsoring this wonderful entertainment to enlarge the memorial fund for soldiers and every cent in excess of expenses will be given for that purpose. It is to be placed.

The story of the Moor in Spanish is an enchanting and told by such a master as Dudley Crafts Watson with such assistance as the beautiful colored slides and Miss Grace Murphy, pianist, is bound to be worthwhile entertainment. This appreciation of aesthetics was first done in 1913 by Miss Alice Emerson, at the opening performance of Bailey Hall at Cornell university. This picture symphony is practically new in this vicinity, having been done in Milwaukee almost exclusively.

Members of the Art League headed by Mrs. H. D. Murdoch are in charge of the ticket sale.

Thinking of Christmas.

It is time to begin to think about Christmas for the boys and girls who have no Santa Claus. The Gazette will again act as an agent for the Cheer Leader of the Universe on Christmas day.

If you want to be a Santa Claus to some boy or girl now is the time to enter the lists. Other agencies will care for the food and clothing and useful gifts. The Santa Claus to which we refer are those who bring the cheer and sunlight into toyless lives. The biggest dollar one can spend will be the joy ride to toyless one may give to the boy and girl who has no way of making that visit.

The governor of the state of Wisconsin is coming to Janesville this evening to talk politics as it has to do with taxation or taxation as it has to do with politics. "Hate," said Governor Blaine a few days ago, "is a serpent that must be crushed." Therefore the audience which we hope will be large will see some crushing done.

For a Real Memorial Here in Janesville.

More and more public opinion is being concentrated on the failure of the community to have some memorial to the service men of the late war. What form that may eventually take is of course to be decided later. There is more than passing discussion of a community building which will house various civic activities of a quasi-public nature and eventually, if the people want such a building, we shall have it.

From time to time a number of societies and clubs have been gathering small sums for the purpose of a memorial. That is a good idea to carry out still further. It will be a thing to think of during the winter and a good cause for organizations to support as the months go by. On Tuesday evening of this week the Art League, of Janesville, will present an interesting program, with Dudley Craft Watson in a picture symphony and the receipts of that most delightful and entertaining event will be turned into the memorial fund. Such an affair deserves generous support, and it is to be hoped the happy thought of the ladies of the Art League will be repeated by others.

Britain and the Tariff.

After a year in office the dissolution of parliament came unexpectedly. It was a move made by Premier Baldwin in order that he might go before the people on the question of a tariff on imports as a solution, in part at least, of the unemployment question. The present parliament has been in harmony and accord with the premier. He wanted a referendum on the tariff matters which have been discussed for several weeks. "That tariff will aid the British industries is the belief of some statesmen—not all by any means. It was presented first as an issue in the days of Chamberlain and defeated as antagonistic to the long established principle of Britain since the days of Cobden and John Bright.

Taking a leaf from the experience of America, the Baldwin government thinks the mills and factories might be started again if American goods were kept out by a high tariff schedule. It would undoubtedly raise more revenue. One of the first proposals is the fixing of a duty on apples. Now the British buyers raise but a small portion of the apples consumed. To place a tariff on apples is a direct violation of the doctrine of protection. It takes its place as a tariff for revenue only which for years was the cardinal doctrine of the democratic party of the United States, led by Tilden, Cleveland and Carlisle. Protection, in tariffs, means the levying of duties on articles which are grown here or may be grown or manufactured in quantities practically sufficient to fill the demand of local consumption. It avoids a customs duty on articles not produced here. That class of tariff is best illustrated by a duty on coffee and tea. We have never had such duties except by so called free trade congresses, or as war measures.

The British experiment in protective duties will be watched with interest. There is nothing of a retaliatory nature in it. In Britain the great question of the hour is one of unemployment. Nearly three million workmen are out of jobs. They have to be supported by dole from taxation. Industries are idle, mills silent. When they were all going we were still able to maintain our trade and compete with Britain in the world markets. We may be able to do it again. A British tariff is a great experiment in economics for them and will be bitterly opposed by the Liberals who are committed for all time to free trade.

A hotel in Kansas City larger than any we have in this section, has been ordered closed and a padlock placed on the door for a year, by order of a federal judge. The padlock is found to be the most effective way of teaching a law enforcement lesson.

Four cities have filed applications with the republican national committee seeking the convention of 1924. There is but one real place for the convention and that is Chicago. It has better hotel facilities, is more easily reached from all points and a more homelike city than any other now asking for the great meeting.

Europe's Wealth Changes Hands

Washington—FREDERICK J. HASKIN.
Washington—What is regarded as the most significant and fundamental economic result of the war has been the redistribution of wealth throughout all Europe, according to observations of special agents of the government who recently have returned from surveys of conditions abroad. This redistribution has been accomplished by the depreciation of currencies. Various types of reformers have for many years argued in favor of a leveling of wealth. Many of them have contended that this should be brought about by direct action, violent, if necessary, which would wrest great fortunes from those who held them and place them in the hands of the working people. Most of them probably did not hope to see such a leveling accomplished in their generation. Certainly, none of them ever expected to see the result so nearly accomplished as it has been and no one dreamed of the means by which the miracle has been achieved.

That the thing has been achieved in large measure, however, is the gist of the reports brought back from Europe after a summer of investigation there. To be sure many great fortunes still exist, some in the hands of those who were rich before the war and some in the hands of war profiteers, but these are exceptions to the general rule. Reviewing the situation from a purely economic standpoint the wealth has been redistributed and leveled to an astonishing degree.

The process has worked in an almost mysterious manner and in a manner wholly unforeseen. Before the war many farms in Europe, probably most farms, were encumbered by mortgages representing money which the farmers had borrowed in times of crop failure or low prices.

Workers in industrial cities owed debts of various sorts, the furniture of many small householders being under a chattel mortgage to some rich money lender. Bills were owed to grocers, butchers, bakers, candlestick-makers and all other sorts of tradesmen and hundreds of thousands of poor people were staggering under a burden of debt which at times seemed intolerable. It was this situation which encouraged the radicals to talk about direct action and the overthrow of established institutions in order to get rid of indebtedness.

The landlords, the employers, the rich people generally, were living off the interest on the borrowed money or were drawing dividends from industrial concerns, public utilities, and other users of accumulated wealth.

Then came the war, followed by the period of economic turbulence in which the currencies depreciated to such extreme degrees. Everyone knows how the Russian ruble, the German and Polish marks, and the Austrian crown became and bywords. The French and Italian currencies, and even for a while the stable old British pound sterling, became worth substantially less than paper.

Here is where the leveling, the redistribution of wealth occurred. Suppose a German farmer had borrowed 1,000 marks on his farm. This was a heavy mortgage for him to bear and he had to work hard to pay the interest, often with little hope of ever being able to repay the principal and get out of debt. Then the mark began to go down in value. At the same time the price of food, the farmer's chief product, began to rise. It was not long before the mark was worth but one-tenth of what it formerly had been. The debt in value continued and, simultaneously, the price of farm products went up.

It was inevitable that the farmer should seize this opportunity to pay off his mortgage. He did so. He discovered that he could get enough marks for a load of potatoes to lift his whole burden of debt. On the other hand, the capitalist, the man who had been living off the mere interest on the marks which he had to take on all the marks which the farmer repaid in order to purchase enough food for a week. The depreciation continued. Finally it reached such fantastic proportions that the price of a single egg would pay a heavy mortgage.

To be sure some of the capitalists had made provision when they lent their money that it must be repaid in gold but this was the exception because no one in the pre-war days ever dreamed that the mark would depreciate. Marks were lent and marks had to be taken in payment, unless there had been some prearrangement for the payment of gold. Where such arrangements had been made, the farmer was little better off, save for the fact that he was getting much higher prices, even on a gold basis, for his crops.

Scarcely anyone in lending money today to American farmers stipulates that it must be repaid in gold. A lender merely advances dollars because he has a firm conviction that dollars will be just as good 50 years hence as they are today. The same idea was in the minds of the Germans who lent marks before the war.

Therefore, wealth was leveled. The thing of value was the farm land, not the marks. The rich lender got back his marks but found himself poor because the marks would buy little or nothing. The poor farmer still had his farm and had freed it of debt. Had not the farmer been able to pay the mortgage before the war, the lender could have taken the farm away from him, but there was no danger of that after the mark became cheap. The real wealth, therefore, passed from the hands of the rich capitalist to the farmer.

The same phenomenon took place with all classes of poor people. Those who worked with their hands on farm and in factory commanded real wealth. Those who had been living on the interest from money they had lent or invested found that when their pre-war wealth came back to them it had turned to ashes.

The reports of the observers of the American government show that there is just about as much actual wealth in Europe as there was before the war but that it has changed hands. It now is in the hands of the pre-war poor while the pre-war rich have had to go to work in the fields and at the factory. Depreciation of currency has performed the miracle of leveling wealth more effectively than the bloodiest imaginable revolution could have done.

One report furnished an apt example of just what has happened. A rich Austrian family owned several mansions in Vienna. Before the war one of these, which was rented for a few months by an American observer, commanded a rent in crowns equal to $35,000 in American money a year. The observer rented it at the rate of $2.75 a year. This measured the extent of depreciation of the Austrian crown at that time. The rich family which once could count on that $35,000 a year rent had to content itself with an income from that house of $2.75.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.
POETRY
You never can tell, for there's no way to know it.
What sort of a garb hides the soul of a poet;
For not all the poems are written at night.
By the curious fellows who job it to write.
And not all the poets' words are in rhyme.
'Tis something that's felt a good deal of the time.
It flows out of men in all manner of ways,
In the houses they build and the gardens they rule.
In the books they are fond of, the pictures they keep.
The way that they look at their babies asleep;
And I'm sure you would find, could you get deep
The poorest of men has some poetry in him.
He was planting some shrubs, and he worked by the day—
The best he could earn was a laborer's pay—
And I saw he had stepped from the plan we'd made known
And planted one bush to some whim of his own.
He had disobeyed orders. I questioned him why.
And stood back and waited to hear his reply.
He couldn't find words which he wanted to use.
He leaned on his spade and he looked at his shoes.
Then he said: "This one shrub was so lovely and fair
I felt God would like to see it just there!"
So I left that bush there, standing out all alone.
For the soul of a poet had made itself known.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.
Standing on the street corner we noticed the following types go by, says Marcel Steinbrugg: "The elderly man who wears a light-colored hat and politely Ogles every young thing. The determined woman with very conservative clothes. There is nothing hearty, warm, sincere or cordial about her. There may be a man in this world who could have brought these out in her, but she never found him.
The youthful business man who speeds up everything: no limits his life so that he can get ahead.
The sharp and shrewd type of business man whose crooked eyes have limited his success. He always knows more than the other fellow, and the other fellow always beats him out.
The girl with pretty ankles and clothes of a 'society lady' who wears a light-colored dress and changes her job every month.
The third mother of four children. She has come into town from a suburb to do some shopping. Her lunch consisted of an egg chocolate and a sandwich.
A girl with common sense shoes and useful coat. Her wholesome and pretty face smiles—and we smile back.
Four pigeons fly over us and light on the roof of the depot. They live their own lives and so do we all."

Who's Who Today

LIEUT. RALPH E. DAVISON.
Lieut. Ralph E. Davison of the navy air service will be assigned to a far-north post in the near future, where he may acclimate himself for the coming flight to the north pole by airplane. He plans to make a trip to the north pole with Captain Ronald Amundsen, noted explorer.
The recent selection of Lieut. Davison from a list of thirty eligible volunteers for the proposed hazardous flight is a recognition of Davison's knowledge as a flier and his physical fitness.
He is a native of Missouri and a graduate of Annapolis Naval Academy, class of 1916. During the war he saw service on battleships and destroyers attached to the Atlantic fleet. In 1919 he decided to take up aviation and shortly afterward was detailed to torpedo plane development work.
Rounds, Va. For the last two years he has been on duty at the naval air station at Pensacola, Fla., where he has become recognized as an expert on aeronautical theory.
Davison is going to a far northern post in the near future to acclimate himself to cold weather, cold weather food and general arctic conditions. Like other members of the expedition he will start on a rigid diet several weeks before the expedition starts for Spitzbergen in May to make a dash for the pole, which will be made later from the ice packs 400 miles from the pole.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author
SCIENTIFIC NEGLECT
The great antiseptic era of modern medicine and surgery began about 20 years ago. The end of the antiseptic era was the beginning of the present aseptic era.
Seven means poisoning of the system by disease producing germs; antiseptics means the attempt to prevent sepsis by means of agents or conditions which discourage the multiplication of germs and their growth in the system. Asepsis means the exclusion of such germs from the wound and the system.
It requires some knowledge and a certain degree of technical skill to insure an aseptic environment. All healing processes, from the simplest cut or scratch to the gravest wound or wide system. The aseptic era has brought about achievements which were scarcely possible in the antiseptic era of surgery, and the aseptic era has revolutionized the treatment of wounds in communities where the aseptic era has arrived. There are still many communities back in the antiseptic era of medicine, and a few away back in the dark ages of shotgun quarantine and posthumous isolation.
In every community there are plenty of households where the most ordinary and simple means of antiseptic precautions or risks are practiced, such as putting smelly chemicals into the water to scrub the floors, or burning noxious stuff in a room to "purify" or "fumigate" the environment.
It calls for a modicum of knowledge to gain the great advantage of asepsis. The elderly man who is not educated will not be afraid of the dark. Only the ignorant are superstitious. The treatment meted to persons with tetanus in various parts of America is a vivid example of the backward towns is due to panic.
Hands off—this is the first principle of scientific neglect which is the most efficient and simple of training wounds. Don't touch. How difficult this simple injunction is to obey every doctor who has attempted first aid knows. The patient or a bystander is sure to discover an unclean wound and insist that it be touched. Watched every instant until the wound is so dressed as to prevent easy access. Keeping a wound from contamination is like trying to keep a child from eating candy.

Q. Tell me whether there were any silver dollars minted in 1922 and 1923.
A. According to the annual report of the director of the mint there were 321 silver dollars minted bearing the date 1922 and 1923.
Q. Another question. I have a rent respecting this celebrated dollar. One, that the entire coinage was aboard a vessel which sunk in the Mediterranean sea and the cargo was lost. Another dollar had any dollars were struck during this year, the belief being that dollars bearing this date were struck years ago, hence their value in circulation.
A. Another disposition of the question by stating "all are restrikes or frauds." It is generally believed that not more than a dozen genuine "restrikes" are in circulation. The date was changed in 1869. The first known specimen was sold in Philadelphia, 1907, for $3,400.
Q. How should geraniums be kept through the winter? N. B. T.
A. The department of agriculture says that the method of housing geraniums up by the roots in the cellar is a reasonably successful way of keeping them through the winter, but is not considered the best procedure. It is better to dig the plants up, put them into pots, cut off most of the tops of the plants, and keep in a light window in a cool room. Another method is to keep the plants in earth, water them, and let them alone.
Q. Does Jack Dempsey smoke?
A. M.
A. He smokes cigars occasionally, though not while in training.
Q. How many inches of rain have fallen in the city of Chicago since the beginning of the year?
A. M.
A. To prevent raindrops or water from bending on glass view off the glass with a piece of cloth wet with glycerine. The first for drops rain makes a drop spreading and shows a tendency to run, but as the drops increase in number they come into contact with each other and coalesce, forming a smooth transparent film of water over the entire surface, which is no obstruction to vision.
Q. How many nightingales are imported into this country in a year?
A. E. L.
A. The department of agriculture says that as far as known there have never been any importations of these birds to the United States.
Q. How long will compressed yeast keep? A. L. A.

Horoscope

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1923
Although Neptune dominates this day, it benefits astrology. The day is a day of peace and harmony. Saturn, Uranus and Mars are all adverse.
There is a sign that certainly presages the coming of world attention on the production and distribution of oil.
Neptune is in a place that is read as foreboding a rapid rise of oil and oil products within the next year.
Real estate in widely separated parts of the country is likely to suffer a decided fall in value, owing to certain business conditions that are now developing.
The unexpected is to happen in all things, according to the seers, for the future cannot be planned according to the past.
Again there is to be much discussion of military matters and honors for army and naval officers are foretold.
Much dissatisfaction with local government will be expressed in many cities and his discontent is to be reflected later in criticism of Washington affairs.
Both men and women should beware of any sort of eccentricity or mental peculiarity, for the mind will be unusually susceptible to strange influences during this away of Uranus.
The signs indicate a continued use of narcotics and little progress in preventing the traffic in drugs.
There may be a tendency to give way to irritability and to indulge in fits of temper while Mars is in a sinister role, but self-control should be practiced during this time during this period of transition from old to new conditions.
Grave danger of war has been repeatedly foretold since 1912 and a new problem for the United States are foreshadowed.
Persons whose birthdate it is may have rather a troublesome year. They will succeed by special attention to business.
Children born on this day may be rash and a bit improvident, but these subjects of Scorpio and Sagittarius traits and they should have great possibilities.

FIXES STRANGE COSTS

(By Associated Press.)
Berlin.—A Berlin shoemaker recently sued a prominent German actress for libel and won a decision. The actress was required to pay the costs. When the judge asked the shoemaker the amount of his lawyer's fee, the cobbler replied he had promised the attorney a new pair of half-boles. The court required the actress to pay the cost of mending the lawyer's shoes.

Even in Shakespeare's time stains proved troublesome and Lady Macbeth was moved to strong language in her endeavor to eradicate the stain of Duncan's blood. But nowadays stains can be readily removed—that is, if you know how.
Every stain has its remedy and 88 of them are listed in the booklet "Out Damned Spot!" which our Washington Information Bureau has for free distribution.
A copy of this booklet in your home may save you a costly piece of wearing apparel or valuable lace. Some of the stains are new and send for your copy. Enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. Write your name and address clearly.

Conquering Time

THE WORTH of a man is measured by his usefulness.
When many men are grouped to perform a common task for the common good they become an institution.
The same measuring rod applies to the institution as to the individual.
The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is an institution—a big institution.
It is big in size because it renders a big service. Perhaps there is no phase of Standard Oil Company (Indiana) service which is more significant or more far-reaching in its benefits to man than the means it furnishes for the conservation of time.
It enables men to do the work of the world easier and in fewer hours.
It speeds up every phase of industry.
The manufacturer can produce more merchandise because Standard Oil products enable him to run his machinery at higher speed.
The farmer can cultivate more land and raise greater crops because Standard Oil products enable him to use power-driven farm machinery.
The doctor can see more patients because Standard Oil products have enabled him to substitute the automobile for the horse.
The salesman can display his wares to twice as many buyers by utilizing Standard Oil products and the automobile.
Standard Oil Company (Indiana) service lengthens man's three score and ten by increasing his capacity for accomplishment.
The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is proud of the part it has taken in furnishing the means for men to annihilate time and distance through controlled and directed effort.
It is proud of the fact that it has been able to benefit so many industries by taking so many products, varied and useful, from the single base—crude petroleum.
The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is proud of the leadership it has earned in the petroleum industry.
It is proud of its organization of 27,000 men and women through whose loyal, earnest efforts it is able to render such a superior service as to have earned the respect and confidence of the thirty million people of the Middle West.

The Step on the Stair

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN

Author of "The Leavenworth Case," "The Filigree Ball," "The Mystery of the Hasty Arrow," etc.

Copyright by the Author. Reprinted by permission of McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

A series of iron steps with a railing on one side—ancient of make, but still serviceable, offered us a means of descent into depths which, from the floor of the room, seemed as strong as it was, did not entirely penetrate.

"Will you go down?" I asked Edgar. "Or shall I?" "The ladies had better remain where they are."

I was quite content with his answer would be and I was not disappointed.

"I will go down, of course. You can follow if you wish, Lucy. Or perhaps not one step after me, you heart."

His tone and attitude were masterful; and instinctively they shrank back. But my father for their safety was equal to his. So I added my appeal.

"You will do as Edgar says," I prayed. "We must go down, both of us, but you will remain here."

"Unless you call us."

"Unless you are gone too long."

"I hurried down, Edgar having got the start of me by several steps. As I went, I noticed what seemed a question which had arisen in my mind. I became assured of the existence of this secret stairway."

My uncle was an unusually tall man. How could he possibly so many inches to his feet? I had never put under the bridge between the two walls made by the flooring of the intervening alcove. It must have caused extraordinary effort for a man so weakened, so near to being moribund. But I saw that it could be done if he had the strength and knew just when to use it.

Body forward, the incline of the stairway was rapid and moreover began much further back from the alcove than I had supposed it, nearly using the distance with me. Indeed the whole construction, as I noted it in my hasty descent, was a remarkable piece of masonry built by an expert with the evident intention of defying detection except by one as knowing as himself. The wall of the inn, which had been a wooden structure, had been replaced by a brick one into which were sunk the beams of the various bridges upholding the passage-ways and the floor of the alcove already alluded to. Hundreds of dollars must have been spent in perfecting this arrangement, but why and to what end was a question which did not then disturb me, for the immediate mystery of what we should and how was sufficiently engrossing to drive all lesser subjects from my mind.

Meanwhile Edgar had reached a small wooden platform backed by a wall which cut off all further descent, and was calling out for more light. As the stairs, narrowed by the brick re-enforcement of which I have spoken, were barely wide enough to allow the passage down a goodly-sized man, I could not but see that it was necessary for me to remove myself from his line of vision for him to get the light. He would be in the open or two I cleared the way and stood in a sort of demi-glow at his side.

A bare wall in front—nothing there, and nothing at the right; but there, on the left, an old-fashioned box clamped to the wall as the height of a man's shoulder. It was indeed an ancient box, and a wooden one with a musty smell. There was a lid to it. This lid was half wrenched away and hung over at one side, leaving the box open. From the top of this box protruded the folded ends of what looked like a legal document.

As our eyes simultaneously fell on this, we each made a movement and our chances clashed. Then a low deep breath from him was answered by the same from my own chest leaving to suffocation.

"I have found it," he muttered, choking, and reached out his hand. But I was quicker than he.

"Wait," said I, pulling him back. "Before either of us touch this lid, if that is the will we are looking for and if it makes you the master here, I here swear to recognize your rights."

"I had catarrh of the stomach and head for three years. My stomach was so bad that every time I ate anything sweet, such as fruit or sugar, the burning hot water would run out of my mouth. I took a laxative every night."

"Since making Mills Emulsion, my bowels are regular. I have now taken ten bottles and have gained 10½ pounds. All my friends remark how fine I am looking, and it seems a pleasure to live again, with no stomach trouble."—Nert Becker, Miami, Ohio.

LA TEST MARKET REPORT

Weekly Livestock Review

CATTLE.—Yank cattle advanced 15 to 25¢ last week, and the demand was active. Steers heavier than 1,200 pounds were short, most of the time, and the market was about steady with the previous Saturday. Receipts during the week were somewhat smaller than the previous week, being placed at 68,500. Yearlings and heavy weight steers sold at $11 to $11.50, with some up to $12.25. Main grades sold at about $9 and common light stock at $6.50.

Prices on butcher stock declined gradually and stood 10¢ to 25¢ lower than the previous Saturday at the close. The bulk sold for $1.15 to $1.10. Common cows brought $2.25 to $2.50 and beef cows $1. The bulk of the week was sold at $1.10 to $1.15. The outside demand for hogs caused a price of $1.10 to $1.15 at the close. Janesville and Beloit Battle Desperately 0-0 Tie

3,500 See Great Battle; Fumbles and Penalties Halt Possible Scoring

Though both teams fought brilliantly and hard, Janesville and Beloit high schools are in the same position Monday as they were before they leaped at each other at the fair grounds here Saturday afternoon. The annual renewal of the golden rule between the leading clubs of Rock county was an unbroken tie.

A crowd that was roughly estimated at 3,500 saw the best contest that has been staged between the two schools in recent years. Despite the fact that Beloit kept Janesville from scoring, or, if you wish, Janesville kept Beloit from making a point, the result had its gratifications.

Crowd Very Orderly
Amid a setting that was equal to collegiate atmosphere, peeped by the high school band of 230 pieces, the huge gathering of fans was the most orderly of any combat between Janesville and Beloit organizations for a number of years. The spirit of rivalry was there, the cries for victory were eager, but the spectators of each city illustrated the type of sportsmanship of which clean athletes are capable.

The attendance was as much a historic feature of the afternoon as the game itself. It was the largest, officials believe, in the life of the school. For Janesville, the enclosed enclosure, four deep. Home-coming and the appearance of Beloit had brought the thousands.

Added to the scene was a real score board, manufactured by students.

Frankie to Tenness.
Janesville may not have won, but the team may be congratulated on its showing. The Purple team will give the Blue outfit a margin in the playing of the game and to Beloit will award credit for a fighting spirit and a team that is not a football team.

Each team had chances to score. Fumbles, penalties, incomplete passes, and a strong wind turned the tide at critical moments.

Pretty Little Ball.
As the game neared its close, Janesville let loose a brilliant rally that took the ball down the field with terrific speed. But, the speed of the attack was faster than the movement of the ball and the whistle halted a possible touchdown.

It was a heart-breaking fumble that started the drive. The Purple muffed the ball on her own 35-yard line. Janesville strategically shifted from the right to the left. The ball was snapped and Polson heaved the pick-kick, while a delayed double pass play was tried.

Three remarkable diagonal passes, two for 25 yards each, advanced the ball to Beloit's 15-yard line before the whistle ended it all.

One went from Polson to Austin. Two were started by Knipp and Knipp. The Purple tackled on the last one and saving his comrades a defeat. A recovered fumble that happened during the last play was a valuable time.

Try for Field Goal.
Once in the third quarter and again in the fourth, the Purple of Beloit attempted a field goal. It dropped-kicked in the third period on the 35-yard line, but a high wind tore down the field, swept the pick-kick out of the hands of the Purple. The ball was plucked to the 40-yard line with the wind against him and the attempt failed. The Purple had been forced upon their hunches in the third quarter.

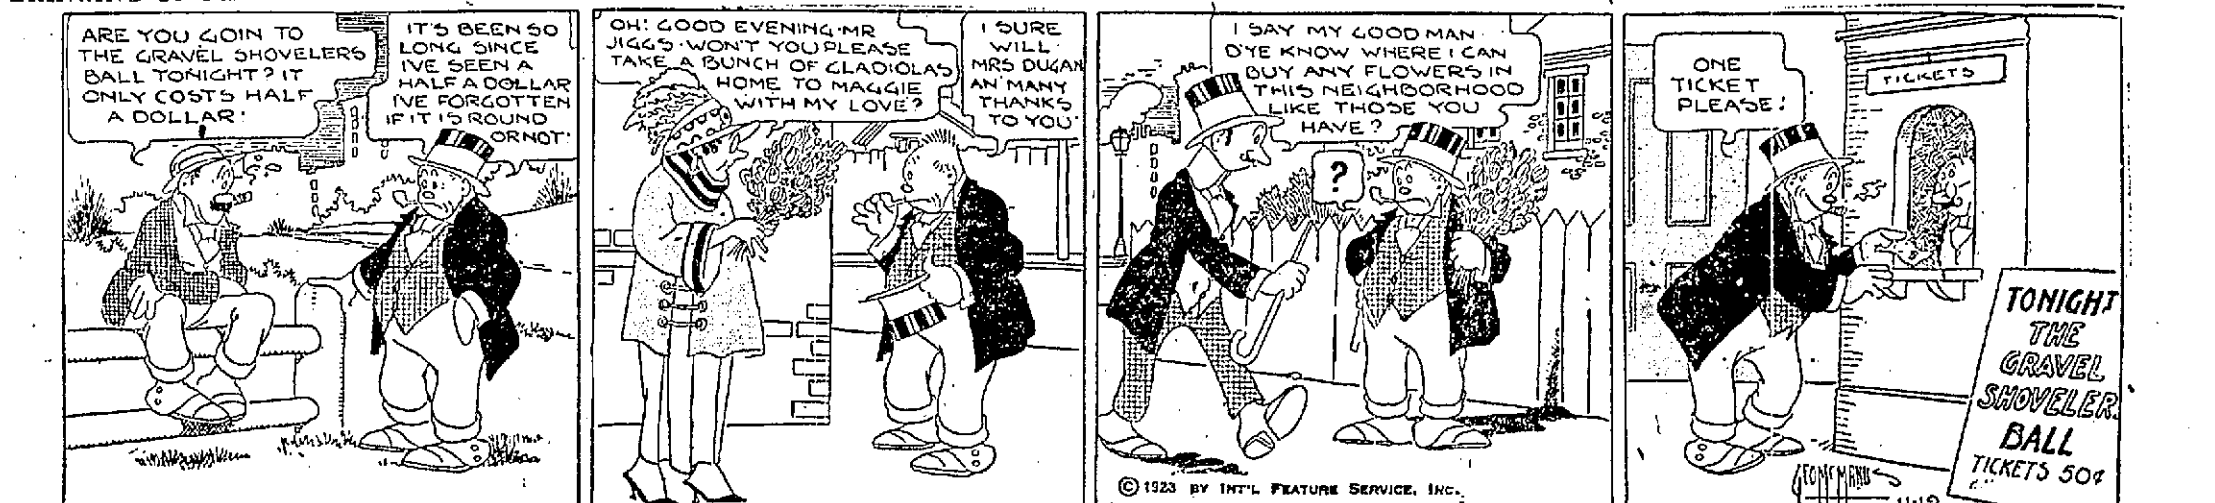

Janesville crossed Beloit's goal in the third quarter. The Purple muffed the ball on a left end run. Holding by Janesville nullified the play and sent the ball back to the 15-yard line. There it was lost on downs. Janesville's fumble, but Beloit's punt penalized 15 yards when Knipp was roughed while attempting to pass.

Directly following the set-back, Janesville's offense was in a wonderful punt and with the aid of two great bounds, put the ball on Janesville's five-yard line. It was Beloit's turn to play. The Purple within the shadow of Janesville's goal and it looked dangerous when Janesville's defense intercepted a Blue pass. That crucial interval passed when Beloit kicked the ball down.

Touchback Not Allowed.
An error in the interpretation of the forward passing rules cost Janesville a yard in the first quarter. An attempted pass from Knipp to "Goldie" Hallett hit a goal post. Instead of calling it a touchback, the referee ruled it a forward pass. The Purple on her own 20-yard line. Referee Dave called it an incomplete pass. The Purple was on fourth down on her own 25-yard line. The Purple on her own 25-yard line.

In trying for that pass, Hallett rumbled his head against the post. He was not injured.

IT WAS a sorry incident that saw some voters forsake their sportsmanship after the Michigan game Saturday and surround Referee Eckersall. He usually knows the game better than the majority of fans. When he is the chief official, Eckersall ordinarily can see what is going on at the heart of the play.

SESSION PROMOTES COUNTY "Y" WORK

Interesting Conference of District Groups Held in Clinton.

Representative men and other boys interested in the work of six Y. M. C. A. groups of southeastern Rock county met for conference in the Clinton building Sunday afternoon.

J. I. Green, president of the Rock county Y. M. C. A., presided and led in singing.

Following a short devotional period, Claude Robinson, a representative of Bradford district spoke on "Our First Problem," which he considered to be the need of a program of vital interest. A stronger program and closer connection between the "Y" and the church were the points stressed by Henry Lloyd, president of the Emerald Grove group, who spoke on "Things We Expect to Do."

This group has opened its fourth year under the same leader, Wendell Hanson.

J. G. Prosser, leader of the newly organized Murray group, emphasized the need of games as a means of building larger attendance. The district leader of the Clinton Y. M. C. A., outlined the plans of his group and showed the changes that will mark this year's program. He stated that younger boys are now being led by older members who have received their training in Y. M. C. A. groups and cited some instances in which younger boys had been helped.

John P. Hoff, state secretary of county work, gave the main address. "It is important that we, the boys of our groups and the community, have the abundant life—this is the test of whether any institution or group is making good," he said.

County Secretary J. K. Arnot made the closing remarks, asking whether or not another conference of the same kind was desired. These sessions will be held on Sunday, Dec. 16 at the same place. Mr. Arnot also called attention to the monthly bulletin "Our County Y Activities" and asked how one group can stimulate another by reporting some of the things being done.

The following groups were represented: Thornton, district, Emerald Grove, Avallon, Bradford Center and Clinton.

Indians Are Not Born Citizens

Are Indians citizens? That is but one of the hundreds of questions asked of Frederick J. K. Arnot, director of the information bureau for the Janesville Gazette, in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Arnot says that according to the Office of Indian Affairs, Indians born in the United States are not citizens. They are made citizens by receiving a patent and fee or by showing that they are capable of managing their own affairs.

Another subscriber to the Gazette asked Mr. Arnot if a person born in Canada was entitled to citizenship. He replied that if his mother was a Canadian and his father a citizen of the United States, Mr. Arnot says that "A child whose father is an American citizen and his mother a Canadian takes the nationality of his father rather than that of his mother."

Booklets numbering 31 were sent out and constitution led with a total of seven. The next highest was sewing with five requests, and game law third with four requests. Other requests: Baking, 2; hair beauty, 1; concrete, 1; diet, 1; drying, 1; floor covering, 1; housecleaning, 2; knitting, 1; rice, 2; school lunches, 1; stains, 1; and vegetables, 1.

HOW A COMMUNITY HAS MADE USE OF ITS OPPORTUNITIES

By FLORENCE SLOW HYDE

Not long ago the Gazette motion picture service put on an entertainment for the Smithton school, town of Bradford. It happens that the town hall seldom used except on election day, is located right next door to the school house, hence the teacher, Miss Agnes McIntyre, arranged to have the program in the hall. Everybody in the "Middie" came out to see the movie, including the boys and girls who are pupils of the Smithton school. The Gazette community editor talked about community work between reels and just before the last reel was shown somebody whispered something about this being a good time to form a community club. It was getting too late to go through the whole process of organizing, electing officers, etc., that night. Hence, it was decided that a community halloween party should be held in the town hall, when the community editor promised to return and assist with games and with the work of organizing a club. "The club was duly organized and everybody had a jolly good time. On this occasion it was suggested that the roomy town hall might be utilized as a gym in which the boys could have basketball and other athletics."

County Y. M. C. A. secretary J. K. Arnot was invited to attend the next club meeting on November 8. Mr. Arnot knows how to make a gym grow in any old kind of building, and shortage of floor space or lack of other facilities doesn't phase him in the least. The Bradford town hall is larger than some others that are being used by rural Y. M. C. A. groups for gym purposes and as a result of Mr. Arnot's visit a young men's club has been organized and a younger boys group is contemplated.

The Smithton Community club has adopted as its aim the promotion of the interests of all young people in the community and in line with this aim, will have a basket social next Thursday night and use a part of the proceeds to help the Young Men's club equip Bradford town hall for basketball, boxing and other indoor sports. An invitation is extended to people from all parts of the township to attend this social and have the program which is being arranged by Miss Agnes McIntyre. At this time the educational leaders of the community will do their bit to help the young men and women of the town. Mr. Arnot will give an address; Miss Ella Jacobson, county normal school faculty, will furnish readings, and there will be a play by Misses Louise Jacobson and Anna Olson, supervising teachers. Community singing and a good social time will be with the sale of baskets and part of the proceeds of the evening's program.

There are doubtless many unused town halls or other buildings scattered throughout southern Wisconsin that need only a touch from the magic wand of community spirit to become rural social centers that will contribute materially to the happiness of old and young and make life on the farm much more satisfying than it has ever been before. The Gazette community service department stands ready to aid in the formation of community clubs and is able to provide entertainment material suitable for a variety of programs. The county educational forces, county Y. M. C. A. Farm Bureau and different state agencies are at the service of rural community clubs.

But the tax exempt securities average about 4 per cent in the interest they yield to the investor. If the latter could get 3 per cent or higher on his money he would naturally have adopted another form of investment. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has devised a plan to increase the net income of the country and at the same time increase the amount of revenue from taxation on higher incomes. The idea is that if the surtaxes were lowered then a wealthy man could afford to lend his money for productive enterprises that offer 8 per cent. If an investor were assured that he did not have to give the government half of his 8 per cent and take additional risks besides he would invest in productive enterprises. Mr. Mellon's theory is that the business condition of the United States is being retarded by the barriers set up by the government itself in adopting taxes that defeat their object.

The trouble is, of course, that the so-called radical element in congress imagines it is popular to "soak the wealthy." This would be hard to refute, as a piece of practical politics, were it not for the fact that "soaking the wealthy" means the taking of money from the pockets of the wealthy and putting it into the pockets of the government and actually loses the government an average of $100,000,000 a year in taxes. That $100,000,000 has to be made up somehow, so it is placed on the backs of all persons with incomes from $50,000 down to $1,000. The statistics show, however, that about seven million people actually pay nearly all of the taxes of the United States and that only a few thousand have incomes above $50,000 a year. The millionaires are not on the decrease but the amount they pay in taxes is diminishing annually through legal evasions. Here is a table prepared at the treasury department on the basis of the official returns of the last few years showing the taxes collected from persons with incomes over $50,000:

1919—$725,444,429.
1920—$482,939,357.
1921—$317,329,125.

The foregoing table shows that for 1921 the government collected about half of what it collected for 1918. In other words, after higher surtaxes were imposed the wealthy people found other ways of investing their money and the government lost.

One treasury official tells a story of a man of wealth who was approached by an enterprising manufacturer who needed $200,000 of capital to build an addition to his factory. The wealthy man was offered 8 per cent on his money and a guarantee that the whole sum would be paid back in a few years—a remarkable opportunity. But he turned it down. For when he found out that out of the 8 per cent he would have to give the government at least 3 per cent and it would leave him with an income of only about 5 per cent, he turned around and put the $200,000 in tax exempt securities and made that extra 1 per cent.

The manufacturer was not able to get the money to extend his plant, and as a consequence the chamber of commerce in that city, which was all ready to furnish the site because they wanted to see the workmen employed, had to give up the project. The city in question lost a chance to get a bigger factory, workmen lost a chance of employment, the real estate people could not sell the lots and houses they had counted on selling to the newcomers and the government of the United States did not get any taxes.

Mellon's Plan. This kind of an experience has happened over and over again until Secretary Mellon is convinced that it is a short-sighted policy to impose such high taxes as to scare capital away. He thinks that lower surtaxes would be attractive enough to put money into productive channels and while the wealthy might make a little more money, so would the government. As a consequence of increased revenues the government might have reduced the burdens of the seven million taxpayers of small incomes, and as for the local communities, they might have been enriched in a thousand and one ways that productive enterprise helps a city, its merchants, its professional men, its workmen and its laborers. Being the best proof of what is happening is afforded in the following table showing that the number of persons who have reported in-

GOOSEBONE JASPER WRITES THE GAZETTE ABOUT THE WEATHER

Goosebone Jasper of Kinnikinnick, Wis., who lives on the edge of the prairie near the tannack swamp, writes to the Gazette to say that he got one of the Meade weather cards being given away by the Gazette, and that he has a few weather prognostications of his own, differing from the Meade forecasts. According to Mr. Jasper the winter is to be severe. Here is a set of reasons:

Fur on wild and domestic animals is unusually heavy. Ants have gathered their winter supply of food early and stored it far below the surface of the ground. Cockle burrs filled out and ripened early. Corn husks are extremely thick. Nuts and acorns are plentiful and are being stored away early by the squirrels, jays and woodpeckers. Wild geese have big bones and heavy feathers. Heavy mists on the trees. Leaves have not fallen so early in five years as this.

Goosebone is willing to wager that he is correct in all this. He says that the present spell of warm weather is merely a precursor of the hard stuff that the way of winter we are to get along about Christmas, and closes his letter by warning people to go shopping early and be sure about getting the Christmas presents now as it will be too late later on when there is a blanket of snow and the roads are impassable.

TWO BOOKS ON WAR ARE OF INTEREST. "Two Adventures of the Secret Service," by Major C. E. Russell is the feature book of the library at present, on account of its adventure, and the light it shows on the activities of the secret service in France during the World War. The book is written in story rather than in historical form, and traces the story behind the strange dispatches originating from a shadow in northern France in May, 1918. The author was the head of the most strategically placed arm of the service in France during the war. Another book on adventures during the war is "Beasts Men and Gods," by Ferdinand Ossendowski, a Polish professor holding an important official scientific position in Russia during the war, who was caught in the revolution, and escaped only by making his way through Mongolia and Tibet to British India.

YOUTH IN STOLEN CAR IS ARRESTED

Chief Gillman Holds John Depla for Superior Theft.

Becoming suspicious of John Depla, 19, when he arrested him for failure to stop upon entering an arterial highway in Evansville, Chief of Police Fred Gillman investigated further and found that the youth was driving a car with license plates that had been issued to P. L. McCormick, Superior. Accordingly, Depla was held while Chief Gillman notified the chief of police at Superior, from whom he learned that a car was stolen from Mr. McCormick last Wednesday. Depla was then locked up to await the arrival of an officer from Superior, Monday, to take him back to that city. An extra set of license plates, numbered 154-546, was found in the car. These had been issued to Thomas Anderson, R. F. D. 5, Tomah.

Final election of officers will take place. New curtains for the class room will also be made at this meeting, to which all young women of the church are invited.

University Given $300,000 in Will. Madison—The University of Wisconsin will receive probably $300,000 under terms of the will of Torger Thompson, wealthy Deerfield farmer, which was made public here. The university will receive its share of the estate, valued at more than $500,000, at the death of Mrs. Thompson. St. Olaf's college, Northfield, Minn., will receive $40,000 for assisting students.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH TO ELECT OFFICERS. The annual meeting and election of officers will be held in the First Christian church, Friday night. Supper at 7 will be followed by the business meeting. The Senior Christian Endeavor society will hold a business meeting at the parsonage, 228 South Main street, Monday night. Ruth Circle, Loyal Daughters, will meet Tuesday night with Miss Mildred Schuler, 214 Center street. The annual election of officers will take place. New curtains for the class room will also be made at this meeting, to which all young women of the church are invited.

According to Mr. Jasper the winter is to be severe. Here is a set of reasons:

Fur on wild and domestic animals is unusually heavy. Ants have gathered their winter supply of food early and stored it far below the surface of the ground. Cockle burrs filled out and ripened early. Corn husks are extremely thick. Nuts and acorns are plentiful and are being stored away early by the squirrels, jays and woodpeckers. Wild geese have big bones and heavy feathers. Heavy mists on the trees. Leaves have not fallen so early in five years as this.

Goosebone is willing to wager that he is correct in all this. He says that the present spell of warm weather is merely a precursor of the hard stuff that the way of winter we are to get along about Christmas, and closes his letter by warning people to go shopping early and be sure about getting the Christmas presents now as it will be too late later on when there is a blanket of snow and the roads are impassable.

TWO BOOKS ON WAR ARE OF INTEREST. "Two Adventures of the Secret Service," by Major C. E. Russell is the feature book of the library at present, on account of its adventure, and the light it shows on the activities of the secret service in France during the World War. The book is written in story rather than in historical form, and traces the story behind the strange dispatches originating from a shadow in northern France in May, 1918. The author was the head of the most strategically placed arm of the service in France during the war. Another book on adventures during the war is "Beasts Men and Gods," by Ferdinand Ossendowski, a Polish professor holding an important official scientific position in Russia during the war, who was caught in the revolution, and escaped only by making his way through Mongolia and Tibet to British India.

But the tax exempt securities average about 4 per cent in the interest they yield to the investor. If the latter could get 3 per cent or higher on his money he would naturally have adopted another form of investment. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has devised a plan to increase the net income of the country and at the same time increase the amount of revenue from taxation on higher incomes. The idea is that if the surtaxes were lowered then a wealthy man could afford to lend his money for productive enterprises that offer 8 per cent. If an investor were assured that he did not have to give the government half of his 8 per cent and take additional risks besides he would invest in productive enterprises. Mr. Mellon's theory is that the business condition of the United States is being retarded by the barriers set up by the government itself in adopting taxes that defeat their object.

The trouble is, of course, that the so-called radical element in congress imagines it is popular to "soak the wealthy." This would be hard to refute, as a piece of practical politics, were it not for the fact that "soaking the wealthy" means the taking of money from the pockets of the wealthy and putting it into the pockets of the government and actually loses the government an average of $100,000,000 a year in taxes. That $100,000,000 has to be made up somehow, so it is placed on the backs of all persons with incomes from $50,000 down to $1,000. The statistics show, however, that about seven million people actually pay nearly all of the taxes of the United States and that only a few thousand have incomes above $50,000 a year. The millionaires are not on the decrease but the amount they pay in taxes is diminishing annually through legal evasions. Here is a table prepared at the treasury department on the basis of the official returns of the last few years showing the taxes collected from persons with incomes over $50,000:

1919—$725,444,429.
1920—$482,939,357.
1921—$317,329,125.

The foregoing table shows that for 1921 the government collected about half of what it collected for 1918. In other words, after higher surtaxes were imposed the wealthy people found other ways of investing their money and the government lost.

One treasury official tells a story of a man of wealth who was approached by an enterprising manufacturer who needed $200,000 of capital to build an addition to his factory. The wealthy man was offered 8 per cent on his money and a guarantee that the whole sum would be paid back in a few years—a remarkable opportunity. But he turned it down. For when he found out that out of the 8 per cent he would have to give the government at least 3 per cent and it would leave him with an income of only about 5 per cent, he turned around and put the $200,000 in tax exempt securities and made that extra 1 per cent.

The manufacturer was not able to get the money to extend his plant, and as a consequence the chamber of commerce in that city, which was all ready to furnish the site because they wanted to see the workmen employed, had to give up the project. The city in question lost a chance to get a bigger factory, workmen lost a chance of employment, the real estate people could not sell the lots and houses they had counted on selling to the newcomers and the government of the United States did not get any taxes.

Mellon's Plan. This kind of an experience has happened over and over again until Secretary Mellon is convinced that it is a short-sighted policy to impose such high taxes as to scare capital away. He thinks that lower surtaxes would be attractive enough to put money into productive channels and while the wealthy might make a little more money, so would the government. As a consequence of increased revenues the government might have reduced the burdens of the seven million taxpayers of small incomes, and as for the local communities, they might have been enriched in a thousand and one ways that productive enterprise helps a city, its merchants, its professional men, its workmen and its laborers. Being the best proof of what is happening is afforded in the following table showing that the number of persons who have reported in-
